

Williams Mullen Grows Corporate Securities Practice with Addition of Alyson Harter

03.02.2017

Williams Mullen is pleased to announce that Alyson Harter has joined the firm as a partner in the Richmond office. Ms. Harter previously worked at LeClairRyan. She focuses her practice on securities and commercial real estate matters, representing sponsors and issuers in the structuring of securities offerings, including 1031 syndications, Regulation D private placements, initial and secondary public offerings (both traded and non-traded) and Regulation A+ offerings.

Ms. Harter's experience expands the corporate services that Williams Mullen offers to real estate investors and developers.

"Alyson's experience helping clients navigate a bevy of alternative investment options will be an asset to our clients." Corporate Practice Chair Greg Bishop said. "She's very good at what she does, and we're excited to add her to our team."

Ms. Harter also assists clients with all aspects of corporate governance matters, SEC compliance reporting and state securities regulation matters.

In addition to her securities practice, she counsels clients in all aspects of commercial real estate law, including acquisitions, financing, development, leasing and dispositions for all types of commercial real estate and is experienced in complex transactions such as portfolio acquisitions and tenant-in-common roll ups.

Ms. Harter earned her Juris Doctor degree from Tulane University and her Bachelor of Arts degree from Hollins University.
