

Williams Mullen Introduces Gavels & Gowns, an Education Law Podcast

08.01.2023

Williams Mullen's Education Practice is proud to announce the launch of Gavels & Gowns, a new podcast focused on exploring topics important to leaders of primary and secondary institutions and higher education.

Co-hosted by Harold E. Johnson, partner and chair of Williams Mullen's Education Practice, and Micah B. Schwartz, a partner in the Labor, Employment and Immigration Section, each episode will provide legal insights and important updates on the current legal, regulatory and administrative issues impacting the education industry. The podcast will feature guests from educational institutions and industry associations who will offer unique perspectives to inform and educate listeners managing initiatives or facing challenges in public or private schools, ranging from K-12 to universities.

The Williams Mullen Education Practice provides experienced, cutting-edge legal advice for clients at all levels of education. Our team of attorneys strives to assist educational institutions in achieving their goals, whether it's attracting and serving students, retaining faculty and administrative talent, offering state-of-the-art teaching technology, developing funding research programs or nurturing strategic partnerships.

The inaugural episode features Johnson and Schwartz as they welcome Chris Peace, president of the Council of Independent Colleges in Virginia, Inc. To listen to the podcast, click here.

The addition of Gavels & Gowns marks the firm's third podcast alongside Trending Now ? An IP Podcast and Williams Mullen's Benefits Companion.
